On 18 February 1952, the Brueckenkopf Kaserne in Wittenberg was occupied by an air force unit of 500 to 600 men. Eleven groups of 20 men each were engaged in close order drill and received field training in the meadows around the installation. The soldiers had an average age from 18 to 21 years. A radio mast 8 to 10 meters high was in the barracks yard. An antenna extended from the radio mast to a radio truck. Intensive training activity was being conducted at this radio installation. Behind the barracks installation, there were nine covered biplanes which probably belonged to an air force headquarters.

Comment. Brueckenkopf Kaserne quarters a unit which is assigned to the fighter corps headquarters in Wittenberg. No changes were observed.
